

Kish Bank Leads Again in Supporting the Pink Zone at Penn State

STATE COLLEGE, PA – February 16, 2016 – Kish Bank has proudly raised $25,000 for the Pink Zone at Penn State this year, bringing the grand total the Bank has raised for the cause since 2012 to $93,000. Support for the Pink Zone is a team-wide effort that involves competition between branches and departments, and organizational challenges to raise funds. Bill Hayes, Chairman, President & CEO, said in announcing the final results that “everyone wins in the Fight for Pink.” The Bank supports the Pink Zone at Penn State as part of its partnership with Kish Ambassador Coquese Washington, Head Coach of Women’s Basketball at Penn State. The vast majority of the funds raised are distributed to the three local hospitals in Kish’s market area to promote breast cancer awareness and early detection.

Major sponsors of the Pink Zone are honored on the court at Penn State’s Bryce Jordan Center at the half of the Pink Zone game on January 17, 2016. Kish Bank, a leading sponsor, is represented by Kish Bank Chairman, President & CEO, Bill Hayes (center, in the pink sweater vest), and his grandson, Aidan Hayes (beside the Nittany Lion).
